E.A. Murray In Store With 'Jill'

Van King

On conviction

A Jesus picture goes for a dollar. A gold-painted, repaired lamp, $7.50. There's not much penny candy left — most pieces now cost at least two cents.

The floor is that warped wood, polished by dirt, with the nail heads shining. The venerable red Coca-Cola boxes still keep sodas very cold, as if the 1960s and '70s never walked in the door.

E.A. Murray shuffles around his rickety store in the Pomona neighborhood like a king without a crown. In a few days, he is saying, he will put the fan in the window and then it won't be so hot in the afternoon. He has waited until now, he says, because there might have been another cold snap, and once the fan is put in, the window stays open all summer.

"We just got six days to the week here," he says, looking about. "We don't sell alcohol or any kind of tobacco of any form — that's my convictions."

The 74 years that have built this man are grounded on convictions, the greatest of which came 59 years ago. "In a revival meeting the summer of nineteen hund'erd and nineteen," he says, "at the old Pomona Baptist Church under the ministry of the Rev'rend B.G. Whitley, I was converted."

And E.A. Murray has never sought more.

Early millworker

He quit school in the fourth grade to go to work in the Pomona cotton mill for two and a half cents an hour. He left after 30 years, working for six more at Revolution. He made and sold vanilla extract door to door for a while, and in 1955 opened his store.

All this has been, however, incidental. All this was merely the means to provide his wife and seven children something to eat.

The real life, the real challenge, has been tracts. Religious tracts. E.A. Murray has personally printed and distributed thousands of tracts. "It's just a concern that I had," he says. "I feel like everyone has some kind of a callin' whether it develops or not ...."

His tracts developed.

He bought his first used hand press for $29.75 when he was young. He could print 200 leaflets an hour. Sometimes he would write the message, sometimes he would reprint something that he liked, such as "The Monkey's Viewpoint."

He'd work in the mill by day and print by night. Sometimes he'd sell Bibles door to door. Always he'd slip uptown and deposit his tracts around stores and banks. The years moved on with him, and his press came to be known as The Scriptural Press. He inked his way through three motor-operated presses.

Personal investment

Sometimes he'd receive donations to further his work. But he says, "I 'spect I put more of my own money into it than I ever received." Several of his sons worked with him, and they later became printers.

For a period, The Scriptural Press printed business cards and posters for revival meetings. It was no formal business, but it counted. "I just enjoy puttin' out tracts," Murray says simply, nodding his head. "Just distributin' them, and I was orderin' them from different sources .... I just liked the idea of havin' my own imprint on them."

Several years ago E.A. Murray turned The Scriptural Press over to his son. He concentrated his time on the store. He went to yard sales and bought broken merchandise and repaired it for resale. For 23 years he had watched the neighborhood kids grow up across his counter, and now he could give them more time.

They'd come in, carrying that freshness, that smell of eager perspiration that only school kids could manage, and they'd paw across his counter for treats. Murray was happy.

A few weeks ago, change struck. His wife became so ill he had to put her in a home.

E.A. Murray is trying to adjust. He has been spending more time with his chihuahua, 'Jill'. Every day he goes to the nursing home. He has altered the store hours.

"I used to open at seven o'clock and close at nine thirty," he says. "Now I open up when I get here and close up when I go home ... Since my wife's in the rest home, I can't get interested in it like I used to."

The kids still flow through his afternoons, just as the convictions of his tracts flow through his mind. He is sorting things out, perhaps, unconsciously.

One day soon he must make a decision to put that fan in the window.

SOMEONE, JUST ANYONE

She sat alone in an old people's home,
Lonely, and old and gray;
She wished that someone, just anyone,
Would call on her that day
Did you?

He lay for days on his hospital bed;
The hours were long and hard;
He wished that someone, just anyone,
Would send him a cheery card.
Did you?

He was far from home on foreign soil,
Feeling homesick, lonely and blue;
He wished that someone, just anyone,
Would write him a letter, too.
Did you?

Her loved one died a few weeks ago,
All sad and brokenhearted she sat;
She wished that someone, just anyone,
Would come to her house for a chat.
Did you?

He hoped he had recited his verse well,
That little fellow you know;
He wished that someone, just anyone,
Would smile and tell him so.
Did you? -Sel.

Holly is my name,
I'm very well and happy
And trust you are the same.

My mother was religious
She never smoked or dipped,
And never hit the bottle
Not even a little sip.

I don't have an education
I never went to school,
Never learned the alphabet
Not even the Golden Rule.

I'm being trained for service
To render at nursing homes,
With a friendly jolly attitude
Where ever I may roam.

I'm happy to be a creature
Born in the U.S.A.
Happy visiting shutins

Does A Mother Love Her Baby

Does a Mother love her baby
As she smokes a cigarette
Altho she may not be conscious
Of the harm she's doing it.

Does a mother love her baby
When its in anothers care
And she is at a social gathering
Sipping wine and drinking beer.

Does a mother love her baby
Knowing that it has a soul
That will spend eternity somewhere
While the endless ages roll.

This is a copy of a 16 X 20 picture that was in a picture frame belonging to my grandmother, Maggie Murray Jordan. I don't believe she would have a picture this large of anyone besides her father or brother. It is not her husband nor two of her brothers. I don't have a picture of the third brother. She was d/o James Henry Murray. Compare this picture with his identical twin brother on the next page, Lewis Craven Murray.

The Life and Times of a Country Preacher
Rev. Joseph Rainey Murray

Joseph Rainey Murray was born in Randolph Co. N.C. in 1804. His father was Joseph Murray of Crossroads, who was the son of John and Jean (Anderson) Murray. John had migrated from Pennsylvania to Orange Co. N.C. They attended Crossroads Presbyterian Church. Joseph the elder left Crossroads and moved down to the edge of Randolph , not far from the Orange, Chatham, Randolph Co. lines. After moving down there they became affiliated with the Baptist Church.

Joseph met and married Sarah Elizabeth Danieley , sister of John Danieley Jr. She died and Joseph married John Danieley Jr.and Polly (Mason) Danieley's daughter Celia Danieley. John Jr.was son of John and Nancy Hubbard Danieley . Jimmy Danieley father of John Sr. migrated to Orange Co. N.C. from Maryland. The first landgrant for the Danieleys was in 1779 in Orange Co.

Joseph Murray Sr. joined the Baptist Church, and raised his children to go to the Baptist Church. At a young age Joseph Jr. answered his call to the ministry. He received a good education, and preached whenever he was called upon to do so. Mr. Kernodle, who we will introduce later in this paper, stated that Joseph was "well informed".

The pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in southern Alamance Co. published a paper about the early Baptist in that area. The year he published this was 1917. He went back in history to before 1755, in Orange Co. He spoke of George Whitfield and others. The Separate Baptist, as they were called, founded a church in Randolph Co. N.C. They called it Sandy Creek. Shubal Stearnes and others arrived in Randolph County " The day of the earthquake"Nov.18,1755. Rev.Stearnes died and was buried at Sandy Creek Baptist Church Nov.22,1771. They had several missions relating to that work from Rappannock Va., to Savannah Ga. and west into Rowan Co.. In the surrounding area they founded Shady Grove, Rocky River, Millstone, and Mt. Zion. The exact date when Mt. Zion was founded is not known, but they have records beginning in 1824. In the list of pastors of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in those early days we find Rev. Joseph Rainey Murray named as one of the pastors. They gave no exact dates for each of the pastors.

In a paper written by P.J. Kernodle in 1909, called "Lives of Christian Ministers"he refers to a man he called Joseph A. Murray. I have had many people to ask me about this paper, and who this Joseph was, or if he was related to us. I guess Mr. Kernodle never knew Joseph at all and was writing from things he had been told or other material he found.

In this paper I want to set the record straight as it refers to Rev. Joseph Rainey Murray. As we stated already, he was a Baptist preacher. I do not know when he became affiliated with the Christian Church. I do know that in Mr. Kernodles report, the years Joseph served were from 1838-1847. Mr Kernodles report was very complete as to which places that he did serve.

Mr Kernodle ended up his report in a negative way by his statements. According to Jess Danieley the conference were the ones who were not satisfied with his conduct, and not himself! Mr. Kernodle may have not known and did not explain what Rev. Murrays weakness was.

I had several interviews with old timers throughout the years about Preacher Joe Murray. On one particular interview with Jess Danieley , he gave me the following information. Preacher Joe Murray was Jess Danieleys great uncle. Jess stated that the church fell out with Preacher Joe about his fighting. Now let me stop right here and define his word "fighting". In those days they would have wrestling that they called fighting. It was to prove which man was the strongest . I really think this was something that was born into Preacher Joe Murray; stemming from very early Celtic times. All these people had strong wills and a much stronger competitive spirit. Preacher Joe Murray must have had a double portion of that spirit! So let us end the thoughts that he was ever a brawler or a mean person, because he was not! Preacher Joe Murray was a gentle man, and a Godly man who preached strong and straight. His strength was that of almost two men. His hands were half again bigger than the average man. He feared no man. In all his days he was never defeated in his wrestling. On one occation Preacher Joe was on his way to church one Sunday morning. A man rode up beside him and his family on the road. He asked if they knew Joe Murray? Preacher Joe said, yes I am he. Well said the man, I'm here from Virginia, and I want to see just how strong you really are! Joe climbed down from the wagon, pulled off his coat and shirt. He then proceeded to make that man a believer. As I have stated he was never defeated.

During his ministry he worked with another preacher named Lewis Craven. They were great friends and co-workers in the ministry. They both preached at several church's around this area. Union Ridge, Mt.Zion, and Liberty Christian Church's, just to name a few. Liberty Christian was in Caswell Co., and not many people know about this church today. It was near present day Jericho, just north of Anderson. The people who attended Liberty in it's later years regrouped, and built a new church later right close to Anderson School, an changed the name to Bethel.

Preacher Joe continued his ministry as long as he lived. He preached anywhere he was called on to do so. Rev. Joseph Rainey Murray died in Alamance Co. Oct.17,1876 aged 72 years. He was buried in the Danieley Family cemetery, which is now on private property. He and his wife Celia had ten children.
